Arab Youth advocating for gender equality and women rights

UNESCO regional training, Beirut, 27-29 March 2018

Background Information and Application Form

Background

A 3 day training workshop starting on 27 March and ending on 29 March 2018 will be organized by UNESCO.

The workshop will:
- Share good practices and lessons learnt from advocacy campaigns in preventing Gender Based Violence (GBV) and build capacity of youth advocates/campaigners in this area
- Develop the strategic planning capacities, evidence-based knowledge, communication skills and effective commitment of partner youth organizations working on gender equality and women’s rights to plan a GBV prevention campaign nationally and/or regionally.
- Reinforce North-South-South networking and exchange of practices between Arab and European Youth organizations in order to cross their experiences in the field of gender mainstreaming within cultural heritage promotion and protection.

The training team includes focal points and experts from UNESCO and ABAAD, which is a non-governmental organization in Beirut (Lebanon).

Arabic and English are the languages of the workshop.

A group of up to 20-25 participants (half of which will be young women) will be selected:

1) A participant will be up to 32 years old.
2) A NGO can submit one candidate by filling the application form
3) An affiliation to a national NET-MED Youth network would be a strong asset.
4) Commitment to share knowledge with peers and report the experience with the organizer

Interested candidates are encouraged to apply by sending the application form to: cj.donabedian@unesco.org, by Monday 10 February 2018.

The selection committee will not consider incomplete application and application received after the deadline. There is no fee for registration.
