

LEADERS OF TOMORROW VISIBILITY ARTICLE

The idea behind the NET-MED youth project is absolutely brilliant, because it involves youth organization along the Mediterranean, to be part of the decision making process in relation to development policies, youth inclusion in the job market and projecting them to the production of youth related-media content. Not only this, but the NET-MED youth project also builds on the capacities of these youth, allows them to flourish in order to have them as active citizens able to serve their countries, in various aspects around the region.

The NET-MED youth project is very unique to us 'LEADERS OF TOMORROW & FOR9A.COM education portal and DUKKAN FANN (The creative hub), because we have been part of the network ever since the project started, we have a great relationship with UNESCO and we both believe in each other's work. We are very proud to be part of this amazing network, as we also share the same values and mission. In collaboration with the Net-Med Youth project FOR9A.COM started its research on the situation and culture of Internships in Jordan. With FOR9A.COM, we ensure youth's participation in employment policy design, by helping them get free access to educational opportunities, through our online portal and our offline presence in different organizations and universities. In addition to that FORSA builds people's capacities through trainings, eLearning material, blog posts, and infographics design. After our in depth research that was conducted here in Jordan, in collaboration with UNESCO, we believe that we need to implement internships programs for youth in Jordan to help them gain the proper knowledge and show off their skills in the job market, know its ins and outs and get used to the culture of internships and its extremely valuable effect on oneself.

"DUKKAN FANN" the creative hub that falls under the umbrella of LEADERS OF TOMORROW, also works with the NET-MED youth communication department on the production of creatively designed visual material, data visualization and Infographics. NET-MED youth believes in our creativity and ability to innovate, and in return it is a great pleasure working with UNESCO on such a great project. We as LEADERS OF TOMORROW organization, FOR9A.COM and DUKKAN FANN, would highly recommend other organizations to be part of the Net-Med youth, as we all complete each other, each one serves a different purpose and believes in an idea, and by bringing together different organizations who have multidisciplinary set of competencies, we can all crystalize ideas, develop, implement and evaluate and build on each other's work, instead of just reinventing the wheel.

The NET-MED youth project design is very well organized, and covers proper themes that directly correlates with the various organizations abilities and builds on the capacities of young leaders in order to empower them to participate in revising national legislation on youth, to advocate for the development of national youth strategies and policies and ensure on its implementation.

Our relationship with NET-MED youth and UNESCO is very un-traditional, concrete trusting yet very warm and friendly. We have real good connections with UNESCO headquarters in Paris, Amman, and Beirut and many other countries along the Mediterranean. We are proud to be members of the NET-MED, contributing socially, creatively and digitally to make our future sustainable!
